

Building Bridges

An AHP practice education programme at Alzheimer Scotland 2013–2016

Informed, skilled, inspired

Art Psychotherapy, Dietetics, Music Therapy, Occupational Therapy, Physiotherapy, Speech and Language Therapy

A New Generation

Every year, hundreds of allied health professionals graduate from Scottish universities. Some will go on to become dementia specialists however we know that all will have some contact with people living with dementia and their families either personally or professionally. It is important that AHP students are ready for their work to improve the lives and experiences of people living with dementia and in preparation they need opportunities to connect with people living with dementia.

Our Alzheimer Scotland AHP Practice Education Programme is a partnership approach to supporting our future AHP workforce develop their dementia practice in line with Promoting Excellence at the informed and skilled levels (Scottish Government, 2011) through offering students:

- Experience of working with people living with dementia, therefore contributing to the skills of the future AHP workforce.
- First-hand experience of Alzheimer Scotland as the leading organisation in dementia.

And people who come to Alzheimer Scotland:

- The opportunity to work with a range of allied health professionals for mutual benefit.

Over three years, 100+ AHP students*, interns and volunteers will have participated.

Partnerships

Adrienne McDermid-Thomas , AHP Practice education facilitator and Elaine Hunter AHP Consultant coordinate the programme, working within Alzheimer Scotland to develop partnerships to support AHP Placements

6 Partnerships have been developed with Higher Education Institutions

- Queen Margaret University
- Glasgow Caledonian University
- Robert Gordon University
- University of Strathclyde
- York St John University
- Glasgow Clyde College

Placements and internships have also been supported by AHPs from 8 NHS Boards, the AHP Practice Education team at NHS Education for Scotland, the Scottish Dementia Working Group, Santander Universities and by the respective professional bodies.

A pilot of the Ryan Harper Model ran in partnership with PAMIS

A strategic alliance between Alzheimer Scotland and Queen Margaret University (1 April 2015) has strengthened the dialogue and programme of work with the development of AHP Internships, an Alzheimer Scotland AHP PhD studentship and a new AHP dementia MSc module on rights based AHP practice

Passion & inspiration

"This was a brilliant experience for me to undertake at this level in my studies because it has sort of sparked a 'What if?' type feeling in me. I think I will be a little more creative in my thinking about how I might use the skills I've gained as an OT student to explore where else I could work and who with."

(Occupational Therapy Student 2015)

"For me, it showed me how positive you can be living with dementia and highlighted it wasn't all negative."

(Speech and Language Therapy Student 2015)

AHPs at Alzheimer Scotland are asking for feedback from the people living with dementia they meet. Following time spent together with an AHP student, a simple question is asked...

"What was important for you?"
